Hi, Jenny.

I've looked at the site that was made for 469. I've run a preliminary accessibility checker and the results are positive! Please relay my thanks to the sponsor for the work they put into producing these pages.

Accessibility
A few minor issues were flagged and need to be corrected. Please relay the following to the sponsor/designer (these apply to all webpages):

1. change font family from Avenir to Tahoma (if not available, then Arial)
2. change font size for table text to 17px
3.
4. remove span styles on h tags/subtitles (ie h1, h2, h3) -- let the browser determine sizing (this is a key feature of browsers using accessibility readers)
5. end each section (or table) with spacing below (style "margin-bottom: 40px;") -- this will separate the tables from the subtitles more cleanly
6. place a background of white (#ffffff) around the "Top of page" control with a padding of 15px and a border of 1px gray (#cccccc), or similar visual separation

Readability

While not as critical as accessibility, readability leads to improved comprehension and/or arrangement of information. For instance, comprehension and ease of reading decreases when large amounts of text are centered. Please change the following:

1. align all text flush left -- except for anchors/navigation buttons (ie Motions, Initial Study on Final EIR Certification Appeal webpage)
2. add table cell padding of minimum 3 or 4px to avoid text hitting right up against table borders, if necessary

In summary, this was well done. The above alerts were noted on the accessibility checker and should be implemented as soon as possible, but will not have any bearing on the performance of the pages.

Please let me know if you or the sponsor have any questions.

Thanks,
Martin
